All the materials for building purposes are to be found in the greatest abundance. Stone of the different varieties and quality unsurpassed in the Territory, timber, sand, &c., all at hand .-There appears to be nothing in the way a mere nominal cost. Coal is also to be found of a little better quality, and in greater abundance than at any other point which we know in Kansas, some of the veins being, at the entrance, from three to six feet in thickness. In fact, from our own observation, and what knowledge we have derived from reliable gentlemen, the country for miles around appears to be underlaid with coal of a bitumous character. Iron ore and lead have also been discovered in small quantities within the vicinity, and will doubtless be ascertained hereafter to exist in large quantities. Marble of a fair quality exists within three miles of Centropolis, which will be brought into speedy

Centropolis is situated on the north branch of the Osage or Marais-des Cygnes (Maradezeen) river, on the third or center parallel line. It is 65 miles from Kansas city, Mo. On almost a direct line from Leavenworth city via Lawrence, through the Neosho valley, one of the richest sections of country in the known world

That the first railroad which is made running north and south through Kansas, will be made along the center parallel, the country, settlement, and resources will require. Persons wishing to invest capital could do no better than visit Centropolis, where Mr. P. FULLER, or othcity, would be happy to show them around.

We may be permitted to add, in conclusion, that Centropolis is a competitor for the Capital of Kansas with no small prospect of success.

Important Notice to Kansas Emigrants.

He said, "It seemed that Sharp's rifles were the next best thing to keep slavery out of the Territory, and as we had been cheated out of the proviso, he was in favor of giving the people of Kansas the rifles." He said Ohio ought to at once contribute $5,000, and he would be one of one hundred to do it. As you will receive his speech in the State Journal, I hope you will publish it.

Tell our Free State men not to be discouraged; that the whole North is being aroused, and will take a part in the contest, if once commenced. Thousands will march to our defence so soon as hostilities commence. Missouri, if she continues her suicidal course, may soon expect to see an army of 20,000 men marching through her State, with "Death to Slavery," and "Liberty to all," inscribed upon its banners. So if war they want, war they can have, to the knife and the hilt. For a time it was hard to arouse the North : they believed the contest ended; that the one desperate attempt to conquer Kansas had been made and had failed, and that peace would reign in Kansas. But the contintied troubles there, and the appeals of Kansas to bring about "the greatest good disfranchises American citizens, another Atchison, Stringfellow & Co., to the to the greatest number." The Herald of Freedom. Original Correspondence. Letterfrom a Pro-Slavery Man to a Pro-State Man's Reply.

WESTON, Mo., Feb. 20th 1856. C. V. ESERIDGE, ESQ. - DEAR SIE :-A few days since, in glancing over the Herald of Freedom, I observed your name prefixed to a communication, ask-ing of Congress the admission of Kansas into the Union as a FREE STATE. Judge my surprise, "Fum," to find you figurng so extensively in the destiny of Kansas: moreover, from the fact that in "bygone-days" I have looked upon you as ing a son of the Sucker State, who ould not desert her even in the hour of peril, and moreover, that you had suffithe Union of the States. Many are of the opinion that those who hail from the North act with the Free State Party .-There are exceptions to all general rules; but I know of too many instances where people north of Mason & Dixon's line are oo sound upon the Slavery Question to ever cherish such an idea. I can hardly believe that you act with the Abolition party of Kansas; but such I infer from the lerald of Freedom, which alone should be enough to convince the most fastidious. I am, indeed, sorry that you have fallen among a set of negro-stealers and disunionists, whose invidious designs are calculated to put you on an equal with the highway-man or traitor of our country. I trust, however, you will soon see the error of your course, and make an honorable retreat from the Hell-hole of Lawrence, and embrace principles favorable to the Constitution of the American

In honor to your early connection with the Press, I preserved, in '49, a copy of the Dew Drop, then under your supervision, which I have now in possession, and which I now have no further use for, and consequently will kindle a fire in the morning with it, hoping that peace will attend its ashes," now that you are one side of the all-important I must bear these titles, though I can question and myself on the other.

I am respectfully, CHARLES H. WHITAKER.

LAWRENCE, K. T., Feb. 25, '56. them. After the publication of that communication I was happy to find the same opinion expressed in a resolution in the Anti-Abolition platform framed a few weeks agoat Topeka.

Differing with you and the Pro-Slavery party upon the great question of Slavery, and taking this view of our organic act, and believing that the present territorial laws were enacted for the purpose of driving out Free State men and checking Northern emigration, and that under them justice would not be meeted out to these whose opinions harmonize with my ent magnanimity to ever stand loyal to own, I took grounds in favor of the Constitutional movement.

I came here with the intention of making Kansas my home, but I did not leave my principles behind me. And as I am an actual settler of Kansas, I cannot but feel an important interest in her destiny. . I believe her soil, her climate, and her geographical position, all demand free labor, and therefore I earnestly desire that she be admitted as a Free State. She has no navigable streams that can be depended on. The products of her lertile soil must be borne off on artificial thoroughfares, and where the capital of a commonwealth is invested in slave property it cannot be in internal improvements. There are thousands of acres of rich land now in Missouri unimproved, and when, with her advantage of slave labor, she brings this undercultivation, she may consistently reach her feelers out for more. The South has now the larger area of country, yet her prosperity will in no respect compare with that of the

If I am to be called an Abolitionist a disunionist, a fanatic, &c., simply because I believe the prosperity of the people of this Territory would more rapidly increase under free labor than slave, then assure you I covet none of them.

I hold that with slavery where it exists now in the States, we have no right to meddle, but when it becomes so obnoxious to a people that they will sacrifice their lives before they will receive it or allow it to be forced upon them by usurped authority or at the point of the bayonet, then it is ime some positive legislation should be had in relation to it, or our government is republican only in

It is not necessary for me to refer you to the acts of the Missouri-Kansas Legislature. You know there is one which I was prompted to do so from any other nullifies, if possible, the pre-emption laws of Congress, another which takes away the liberty of the Press and the freedom of speech, thus violating the plainest provision of the Constitution, another which requires a man to pay for the great privilege of voting, thus establishing as a qualification the cents in his pocket and not the sense in his head, another which your party would not submit you were in our place and we in yours. You know you would not suffer yourselves to be harrassed, dragged about, imprisoned, mal-treated and chased from the "pursuit of happiness" by such legislation, unprecedented in the history of our country. While such laws as these the South consistently reproach Massafying the laws of the United States ?-How can the finger of scorn be pointed at that State by pro-slavery fanatics when retalliation, if persisted in, will most assuredly bring ruin upon our country .-
